The Cap Times turns 100 years old this month and we are celebrating the occasion with a special edition of Cap Times Talks on Tuesday, Dec. 12 at the Hall of Ideas in the Monona Terrace Convention Center, 1 John Nolen Drive.

Cap Times editors Paul Fanlund, John Nichols and Dave Zweifel will be on a panel discussing our past, present and future, with the talk moderated by former Wisconsin Public Radio host Joy Cardin. The discussion starts at 7 p.m., but the doors will open at 6 for a reception.

Once the talk is over after an hour or so, copies of a new book by Zweifel and Nichols and published by the Wisconsin Historical Society will be for sale — “The Capital Times: A proudly radical newspaper’s century-long fight for justice and for peace.”

If you would like to record the event with film or audio, please contact Managing Editor Chris Murphy at (608) 252-6420 or cmurphy@madison.com.
