

Democratic Party of Wisconsin: National energy palpable among Wisconsin progressives, ready to win in 2018

Posted on Monday, Apr 24, 2017

>> WisPolitics is now on the State Affairs network. Get custom keyword notifications, bill tracking and all WisPolitics content. Get the app or access via desktop.

Contact:

Brandon Weathersby

brandonw@wisdems.org

(608) 260-2409

MADISON — Joining a chorus of stories across the country, the Milwaukee Journal Sentinel published a Sunday story highlighting activism across Wisconsin that has translated to a record-breaking fundraising and grassroots activism in support of Senator Tammy Baldwin's re-election campaign.

Milwaukee Journal Sentinel: Wisconsin Democrats see new energy, challenges

By Jason Stein and Patrick Marley

April 22, 2017

MADISON - In the first three months of this year, Democratic U.S. Sen. Tammy Baldwin got money from twice as many new donors as she did in all of 2016 — more even than she did in her first full quarter as a Senate candidate in late 2011. She's done it while decrying President Donald Trump and while meeting with new liberal groups that didn't exist last fall when Democrats were dealt a bitter defeat by Trump and other Republicans.

Read more here.

This story adds to a clear trend in Wisconsin and nationally: Democrats are ready to win in 2018.

Read more about this nationwide movement that has found a stronghold in Wisconsin:

Wisconsin State Journal: New faces fuel Wisconsin's 'resistance' movement, hope to achieve what past uprisings could not

Politico: Republicans sound alarm on Trump's troubles ahead of 2018

Washington Post: Wisconsin Democratic senator echoes Trump's economic message in her reelection bid

Politico: Dems show surprising strength at start of brutal 2018 midterm

The Hill: Picking 2018 candidates pits McConnell vs. GOP groups

RealClear Politics: Slow Pace of 2018 Senate Bids a Growing GOP Concern