(MADISON) – The Wisconsin Department of Children and Families (DCF) recently expanded its communication channels to include a new Twitter account aimed at providing Wisconsin families, foster youth, agency partners, and interested citizens with timely information about DCF efforts to improve the economic and social well-being of Wisconsin’s children, youth and families.

“By providing this additional communication resource, we hope that families will have better knowledge of the services offered by the Department and our partners,” said DCF Secretary Eloise Anderson. “We aim to equip families with tools to assist them in their efforts to achieve self-sufficiency and to help children thrive. Every family faces unique challenges, but by informing families of DCF’s mission and the tools and services available, we hope to put them in the best position to be successful.

By following @WisDCF on Twitter, Wisconsin citizens can gain access to important information on Department programs and services, including:

- Child Care
- Child Protection
- Employment Services
- Child Support
- Foster Care
- And much more!

Follow the Department of Children and Families today @WisDCF and help us spread the word about the exciting initiatives taking place to support families, protect and educate children, teach work skills, and guide youth.

Social media should not be used as a channel to report child abuse and neglect. To learn more about the signs of abuse and how to report, visit <https://dcf.wisconsin.gov/reportabuse>.
