

Dept. of Justice: AG Schimel hails court decision upholding Wisconsin's Right

Posted on Tuesday, Sep 19, 2017

>> WisPolitics is now on the State Affairs network. Get custom keyword notifications, bill tracking and all WisPolitics content. Get the app or access via desktop.

Madison, Wisconsin – Today, the Wisconsin Court of Appeals District III upheld Wisconsin's Right-to-Work law in International Association of Machinists v. Wisconsin, reversing the lower court's judgment.

Attorney General Brad Schimel hailed the decision and the work of the legal team at the Wisconsin Department of Justice.

"The state has long argued Right-to-Work's constitutionality and today, we were vindicated when the Appeals Court upheld the law and reversed the lower court's ruling. This is another successful result by the Wisconsin Solicitor General's Office, which has played a critical role in upholding the rule of law and advancing the interests of the State of Wisconsin in the highest courts of the land. We appreciate the legislature's and Governor's support of this crucial unit within the Wisconsin Department of Justice."

A copy of the court's opinion can be found online.

Earlier this year, the United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit upheld Wisconsin's Right-to-Work law in a different lawsuit.