

DotCom Therapy bound for California after winning pitch competition

Posted on Tuesday, Aug 22, 2017

An early-stage tele-health company will join the Greater Madison Chamber of Commerce in a California-bound business delegation.

Yesterday's Pressure Chamber took the form of a head-to-head pitch competition in which five startups each had 5 minutes to tell their story. Participants were graded in part by judge scoring and in part by audience votes. The event was put on by GMCoC as part of Madison's Forward Fest.

DotCom Therapy, a recent addition to the Madison startup ecosystem, was chosen as winner.

Emily Purdom and Rachel Robinson, co-founders for DotCom Therapy, will join the Greater Madison Chamber of Commerce on an upcoming trip to San Francisco, where they will have the chance to meet with top Silicon Valley venture capital firms.
