

Evidence-Based Health Policy Project's seminar "Community Health in the Fox Valley: How are Local Groups Sharing What They Know?"

Posted on Thursday, Aug 3, 2017

Community Health in the Fox Valley:
How are Local Groups Sharing What They Know?

FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Friday, September 8, 2017

10:00am-12:00pm

James W. Perry Hall at UW-Fox Valley

1478 Midway Road

Menasha, Wisconsin 54952

Click Here to Register

Many public and private groups work to improve the health of our neighborhoods, schools, workplaces, and communities. They address issues that include substance use, mental health, obesity, and aging-related diseases. But whatever the focus, all these groups build a vital base of knowledge and expertise.

Join us to discuss what this ongoing work looks like in the Fox Valley. This program will bring together groups working to improve the health of the region, and ask them...

How is your organization learning and using evidence?

How is your organization teaching new findings?

And how can you and others do this most effectively?

This program will be co-hosted by

State Representatives Dave Murphy, Mike Rohrkaste, and Amanda Stuck

and feature panelists from:

Weight of the Fox Valley

Sarah Wright, Program Manager

Fox Valley Memory Project

Lynn Ann Clausing Rusch, Program Coordinator

[National Alliance on Mental Illness -
Fox Valley](#)

Maren Peterson, Executive Director

East Central Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission

Melissa Kraemer-Badtke, Principal Planner — Safe Routes to School

Produced by the Evidence-Based Health Policy Project, based at the UW-Madison Population Health Institute, in cooperation with UW-Fox Valley. This program advance the project's mission: to find relevant expertise and knowledge — generated in the community, on campus, or elsewhere — and promote its use in Wisconsin's health-policymaking process.