WASHINGTON—Today, House Speaker Paul Ryan (R-WI) announced a new addition to the Office of the Speaker:

Stephanie Parks joins the speaker's office today as Assistant to the Speaker for Policy, handling health care and veterans affairs issues. Previously, Stephanie was professional staff at the Ways and Means Committee, where she was responsible for private health insurance market policy issues, including policy related to the Affordable Care Act and health care tax provisions. Stephanie also worked for the Budget Committee, and was on staff when Speaker Ryan was chairman. She is a Las Vegas native and a proud Notre Dame alum.

"I am thrilled to welcome Stephanie Parks back to the Team Ryan family," Speaker Ryan said. "Stephanie has a deep understanding of health care, thanks to her time working on this issue at both the Ways and Means and Budget committees. Her extensive experience and can-do attitude will make Stephanie an invaluable advisor as we work to improve our nation's health care system."
