Washington, D.C. - House Speaker Paul Ryan (R-WI) announced today that his national political operation, Team Ryan, sent over $4.4 million to the National Republican Congressional Committee (NRCC) in February. Speaker Ryan has now sent nearly $8 million to the NRCC to start off 2017.

Two months into this year, the NRCC is firing on all cylinders, and Speaker Ryan is proud to do his part in supporting his colleagues. U.S. Rep. Steve Stivers, the NRCC Chairman, is off to a fantastic start leading the House GOP campaign arm and Speaker Ryan will continue to fully support the team. To date, Speaker Ryan has now transferred about $50 million to the committee since late 2015.

Kevin Seifert, Speaker Ryan's top political adviser and the Executive Director of Team Ryan, said: "House Republicans ran on a very specific plan to get our country back on track, and now with a unified Republican government we have an opportunity to deliver on those big promises. This is an exciting time, and the level of support for the Republican agenda has been simply staggering. Paul Ryan is grateful for the incredible support, and he remains determined to get the job done."

Team Ryan is Speaker Paul Ryan's federal Joint Fundraising Committee (JFC) and his national political organization. Team Ryan is dedicated to assisting his re-election efforts in Wisconsin's 1st Congressional District, supporting Republicans across the country who are advancing conservative solutions, and raising the resources needed to defend and strengthen the Republican majority in Congress.

The Team Ryan JFC is comprised of Ryan for Congress, Inc., Prosperity Action PAC, Inc. & the National Republican Congressional Committee (NRCC).
