Joint Resolution disapproves of burdensome SEC rule

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Congressman Sean Duffy (R-WI) today released the following statement after President Trump signed H.J. Res. 41 into law. Passed by Congress under the Congressional Review Act, the legislation repeals burdensome Dodd-Frank regulations on energy producers.

“President Obama’s burdensome Dodd-Frank financial rules have held our economy back since the bill was passed. That’s why it’s encouraging that we are able to partner with President Trump to stop a rule that could have cost companies over $590 million. I will continue to work with my colleagues in Congress and President Trump to help lift the burden of Washington regulations off of America’s workers, families, and businesses.”
