RACINE, WI – Today, First Congressional District candidate Randy Bryce announced his participation in three debates. The debates will be held across the district in order to allow voters from every corner of Southeastern Wisconsin an opportunity to hear Randy's vision for building a bigger table.

The debates are:

- WisconsinEye in Oak Creek
- Kenosha News, Racine Journal Times, and Carthage College in Kenosha
- WCLO, Janesville Gazette, and WFAW-AM in Rock County

“Randy looks forward to speaking to voters directly and sharing with them why his experience as a working person makes him most qualified to represent Wisconsin’s First District,” said campaign manager David Keith. “Randy anticipates having a lively discussion on what is best for the working people in this district– not what benefits billionaires, millionaires, and CEOs. Working folks are the people, like Randy, that build our country and economy. Randy believes they deserve better than what politics has given them today. As we confirm additional details about the debates, Randy promises to continue listening and talking with working people, not just on debate and town hall days, but every day, about how Washington can work better for them.”

About Randy Bryce

Randy Bryce is a U.S. Army veteran, cancer survivor, and union ironworker. He was raised in southeastern Wisconsin, and went to public school. Randy's father was a police officer, and his mother worked in a doctor's office. After graduation, Randy enlisted in the U.S. Army, and was posted to Honduras, where he earned the Army Achievement Medal. After returning stateside, Randy was diagnosed with cancer, which he survived, but only after struggling through the bankruptcy that came with the medical bills. Once in remission, Randy found his way to an apprenticeship as an iron worker, a trade he's now been practicing and fighting to protect from anti-labor laws for nearly 20 years. Randy currently resides in Caledonia, WI with his son, Ben, who attends public schools like his dad. Randy joined the race for Wisconsin's 1st Congressional District in Summer 2017.
