Today, A Stronger Wisconsin launched three new digital ads, "Schools", "Health Care", and "Roads" urging Wisconsinites to tell Governor Scott Walker that eight years of lousy health care, education, and roads is enough. While Walker chased his personal political ambitions, Wisconsin faced rising health care costs, crumbling roads, and a historic teacher shortage.

These 15-second spots are part of a statewide digital buy. A Stronger Wisconsin is a Democratic Governors Association backed issue-advocacy organization.

"Scott Walker's spent eight whole years playing politics while Wisconsin's roads, schools, and health care got worse and worse," said A Stronger Wisconsin Spokesman Tom Russell. "Wisconsinites should tell Governor Walker that eight years of his failed agenda is enough."

The ads can be viewed here, here, and here, and the transcripts are below:

ROADS

You know what? You don't just wake up one day to 31,000 miles of broken roads. But while Scott Walker's had plenty of time for politics, he's been letting our roads fall apart for eight years, and he's sure not changing now.

HEALTH CARE

You know what? Health care premiums have been going up for years. But while

Scott Walker's had plenty of time for politics, he's let the cost of health care get out of control. It's been eight years, and he's sure not changing now.

SCHOOLS

You know what? You don't just wake up to a teacher shortage so bad they call it historic. But while Scott Walker's had plenty of time for politics, he's let our schools fall apart for eight years, and he's sure not changing now.
