Tony Evers launched a new TV ad today charging the men Scott Walker trusted to run Wisconsin's most important agencies say he lacked integrity and was changed by power and ambition.

Evers' campaign said the ad will run on cable statewide.

It opens asking, "What's it like working for politician Scott Walker? Just ask those who've done it."

The ad then shows the pictures of four former Walker secretaries: Ed Wall at Corrections, Mark Gottlieb at Transportation, Peter Bildsten at Financial Institutions and Paul Jadin at the Wisconsin Economic Development Corp.

"They say Walker changed," the narrator says.

The ad then recounts the former secretaries said Walker lacked integrity, focused on his "own political career at great taxpayer expense" and didn't telling the truth.

"That's coming from the men Scott Walker trusted to lead Wisconsin's most important agencies," the narrator says before adding "Power and ambition changed Scott Walker."

The spot concludes, "Now it's our turn to make another change. To a governor who cares about us."
