Madison...The Wisconsin Policy Forum released a study finding that the tax burden of Wisconsinites is now at the lowest level in 50 years. Chairman John Macco (R-Ledgeview) of the Assembly Committee on Ways and Means released the following statement.

“This did not happen by accident, the policies implemented in the past 8 years have allowed businesses to grow and hardworking Wisconsinites to thrive. Unemployment is the lowest in Wisconsin history, Wages are rising and the tax burden for Wisconsinites has fallen to a five decade low!” continued Rep. Macco “Wisconsin is expanding into the 21 st century and beyond. Hard working taxpayers are seeing an increase in wages, local governments are seeing revenues increase and the state government is running historic budget surpluses while increasing funding for state programs. The environment of free enterprise has made Wisconsin a national leader. Now is the time to implement policies and continue moving Wisconsin Forward.”
