WASHINGTON — Sen. Ron Johnson (R-Wis.) met with Judge Brett Kavanaugh, President Trump's nominee to join the Supreme Court, Wednesday to discuss his nomination and judicial philosophy. A photo from the meeting is attached and below.

“Judge Kavanaugh’s impressive legal background combined with his compelling personal history makes his nomination an easy one to support. Most importantly, as I have reviewed his judicial record I am confident of his intent to apply the law as a judge, not alter it as a super-legislator. I look forward to voting to confirm his nomination to the Supreme Court once the Senate has thoroughly but expeditiously completed the confirmation process.”
