

Voters head to the polls for fall election

Posted on Tuesday, Nov 6, 2018

After months of negative ads and nasty rhetoric, voters across the state head to the polls today to make their picks for governor, U.S. Senate, Congress, the Legislature and constitutional offices.

Republican Gov. Scott Walker faces Dem opponent Tony Evers, and Republican state Sen. Leah Vukmir is vying to unseat incumbent Dem U.S. Sen. Tammy Baldwin.

Voters are also choosing between incumbent Republican Brad Schimel and Dem Josh Kaul to be the next attorney general.

Voters across the state will also choose their next U.S. representatives. The two most competitive races are in southeastern Wisconsin's 1st CD, where Republican Bryan Steil and Dem Randy Bryce vie to replace outgoing House Speaker Paul Ryan; and in the 6th CD, where incumbent Republican Glenn Grothman is defending his seat against Dem Dan Kohl.

>> WisPolitics is now on the State Affairs network. Get custom keyword notifications, bill tracking and all WisPolitics content. Get the app or access via desktop.

Voters, via several competitive races, are also set to determine control of the state Senate and Assembly.

Other races include:

*Secretary of state: Republican Jay Schroeder faces incumbent Dem Doug La Follette

*State treasurer: Republican Travis Hartwig versus Dem Sarah Godlewski

For voting information, visit <https://elections.wi.gov/voters>.

Follow the WisPolitics.com Election Blog this evening for updates:
<https://www.wispolitics.com/category/election/>