MADISON — The Chair of the Democratic Party of Wisconsin, along with the strong support of elected Democratic officials, has forwarded her selection for the Executive Director of Political Affairs, Devin Remiker, to the Party's Administrative Committee. Devin formerly served as Congressman Ron Kind's campaign manager in La Crosse and as DPW's Political Director. Devin has deep Wisconsin roots, having been born and raised in Two Rivers, WI before going to University of Wisconsin - La Crosse.

"I am thrilled to have the support of the Chair and elected leaders to help lead the Party through this crucial period for Wisconsin Democrats," said Devin Remiker. "It is important now, more than ever, that the Party builds on its successes and carries forward our momentum to support and elect more Democrats in Wisconsin. I am looking forward to talking with the Administrative Committee about our shared vision of growing and strengthening the Democratic Party of Wisconsin."

"We are very excited, during this important time for our party, to be presenting such a strong candidate like Devin Remiker to our Administrative committee." said Democratic Party of Wisconsin Chair Martha Laning. "I am confident that we will see continued success under his leadership."
