

WisDems: Kevin Nicholson slams “cognitive thought process” of veterans and service members who are Democrats

Posted on Wednesday, May 2, 2018

>> WisPolitics is now on the State Affairs network. Get custom keyword notifications, bill tracking and all WisPolitics content. Get the app or access via desktop.

Contact: Brad Bainum, bradb@wisdems.org

MADISON — In case you missed it, Republican U.S. Senate candidate Kevin Nicholson this morning “[question\[ed\] the ‘cognitive thought process’ of veterans who vote Democratic.](#)” CNN: Wisconsin GOP Senate candidate questions ‘cognitive thought process’ of veterans who are Democrats

By Chris Massie, 5/2/18

Wisconsin GOP Senate candidate Kevin Nicholson said in a radio interview on Wednesday that he questions the “cognitive thought process” of veterans who vote Democratic, arguing that their military service contradicts their political views. Asked by host Steve Scaffidi on the local station WTMJ about Republican primary opponent Leah Vukmir’s suggestion that her record as a Republican state senator should mean more to conservative voters than his military experience, Nicholson argued that to serve in the military is fundamentally conservative.

“And just because some people that don’t call themselves conservatives and don’t always act conservative do something conservative — like, let’s talk about John Kerry — and signed up to serve this country, that doesn’t mean that that’s not a conservative thing to fundamentally protect and defend the Constitution,” Nicholson said. “Because I’ll tell you, the Democrat party has wholesale rejected the Constitution and the values that it was founded upon. So I’ll tell you what: Those veterans that are out there in the Democrat party, I question their cognitive thought process because the bottom line is, they’re signing up to defend the Constitution that their party is continually dragging through the mud.”

Read more from CNN.