Madison — After receiving the crucial endorsement and overwhelming support of grassroots conservatives at this past weekend's Republican Party of Wisconsin 2018 Convention, candidate for U.S. Senate Leah Vukmir and the Republican Party of Wisconsin are announcing a Grassroots Endorsement Victory Tour with stops in WISGOP field offices statewide.

"Leah Vukmir is a proven conservative who is ready to bring the Wisconsin way to Washington," said Brad Courtney, Chairman of the Republican Party of Wisconsin. "The grassroots volunteers who endorsed her at convention are the backbone of our election efforts. Together, Republicans are ready to beat Senator Tammy Baldwin this fall."

The Republican Party of Wisconsin currently operates 10 field offices that serve as local headquarters for grassroots activists in their communities. Vukmir will kick off the tour Wednesday in Wausau and Green Bay, where she will greet Republican volunteers and deliver remarks. More stops will follow over the course of the next week including in Fond Du Lac and Milwaukee - as well as a homecoming rally in Waukesha on Saturday. Media will be advised of details in the coming days.

Vukmir received nearly 75 percent of the endorsement vote from hundreds of grassroots conservatives who attended convention from across Wisconsin last weekend.
