(Hudson, WI) – Congressman Dan Crenshaw (R-TX) endorsed Jason Church to represent Wisconsin's 7th Congressional District in the U.S. House of Representatives. Crenshaw and Church are both veterans who served in Afghanistan.

"Jason Church has what it takes to make tough decisions for Wisconsin. I know that because we both had to make tough decisions in combat, the ultimate service and sacrifice," said Congressman Crenshaw. "In the military, we relied on our training and values to make the right call and we carry those skills with us today. Jason is a principled, conservative fighter and we need more like him in Washington as we work to defend our borders and protect our constitutional rights."

"It is an honor to have the support of a fellow veteran," said Jason Church. "IEDs took something from both of us in Afghanistan, but they didn't take our desire to serve the American people. I am running for Congress because of my passion for defending my country, not career interests. As representative for Wisconsin's 7th Congressional District, I will stand up for our military, create jobs, and support President Trump."
