(MADISON) – State Senator Tim Carpenter (D-Milwaukee) today called on Senate Majority Leader Scott Fitzgerald and Assembly Speaker Robin Vos to introduce legislation reversing changes made during the recent “lame duck” session to weaken Governor-Elect Tony Evers’ ability to appoint the head of the Wisconsin Economic Development Corporation (WEDC).

“Now that Governor-Elect Evers has indicated he has no plans to dismantle WEDC, I think the Republican scare tactics have proven to be patently misplaced,” said Carpenter. “Majority Leader Fitzgerald and Speaker Vos railroaded a power grab in an attempt to eliminate any influence Governor Evers has over WEDC. According to them, limiting Governor Evers’ ability to name an executive director and reduce the number of board members he could appoint was the notion Governor Evers was going to try and eliminate WEDC.”

“Now that it’s clear that is not going to happen, Majority Leader Fitzgerald and Speaker Vos should introduce legislation repealing the changes they pushed through the lame duck session,” Carpenter said. “Rather than continuing to throw their temper tantrums and choose confrontation over cooperation, Republican leaders should recognize the voters chose to reject the excesses of Republican control and want a government that works together to solve the state’s problems.”

“I respectfully request Republican leaders introduce a bill that reverses course on these recent changes,” said Carpenter. “Rather than continuing to act like petulant children, Majority Leader Fitzgerald and Speaker Vos should put the will of the
