WASHINGTON, D.C. —Today, Congressman Bryan Steil was sworn in to the 116th Congress as Wisconsin's First Congressional District's federal representative.

"I am honored to work for the people of Wisconsin's First Congressional District. For the past ten years, my job was to work with diverse groups of people to complete tasks. I'm bringing this private sector approach with me to Congress to tackle the concerns of our community," said Congressman Steil. "The American people are frustrated with the dysfunction in Washington, but I am committed to cutting through the noise to focus on the issues. I stand ready to work with every member of the House to find solutions that ensure families, students, and workers have affordable health care, good paying jobs, and access to quality and affordable education. I look forward to getting to work on behalf of the people of Southeast Wisconsin."
