[Madison, WI] – Just three weeks into his term, Governor Tony Evers commits yet another flip-flop on a key issue. During his Tuesday night State of the State Address, Evers proudly declared to a statewide audience that he was fulfilling his campaign promise to direct Attorney General Josh Kaul to withdraw from the federal Obamacare lawsuit. But in what is becoming a trend with the Evers Administration, the newly elected Governor reversed course less than 24 hours later; leaving Evers' staff to once again try to clarify just where exactly the Governor stands on key policy positions as he continues to exhibit weak leadership.
