(Hudson, WI) – The momentum in Jason Church’s campaign for Wisconsin’s 7th Congressional District was evident yesterday with the Wisconsin Public Radio forum and release of fundraising numbers. In the pre-primary fundraising reports that all candidates filed, Church outraised his opponent, Tom Tiffany, by $175,000.

Voters also heard from both candidates in the Wisconsin Public Radio forum. WJFW noted in their coverage Jason Church’s strong conservative values and Wisconsin roots: “I know the values that we have in Wisconsin, growing up in a Conservative household, with a mother who listened to Rush Limbaugh every day, and I know that’s the type of people we need in Washington to fight along with the President and be a warrior for conservatives here in Wisconsin.”

“I never wanted to be in politics, I wanted to serve our country in uniform. But when I lost my legs, I still didn’t lose my desire to serve and, for me, I’m not trying to climb a ladder, I don’t want to do this forever. I’m not a career politician,” said Jason Church in WSAW’s recap of the debate.

“With a week and a half to go before the primary election, I couldn’t be more grateful for the support my campaign is receiving,” said Jason Church. “As I travel around the 7th Congressional district, I am meeting voters who are ready for an outsider to go to Washington to fight on their behalf against Nancy Pelosi and the Democrats. I will be that strong conservative voice who will stand with President Trump to defend our values.”
