With many schools shifting to remote learning, Invest in Girls is offering a series of free financial literacy webinars. With finance being part of many news stories right now, we are creating a space for students to better understand current events through a four part webinar series:

April 14th: Workshop 1 – Stock Market & The News

An introduction to the stock market and the forces that effect it.

April 21st: Workshop 2 – To Invest, or Not to Invest

Learn about venture capitalism as a career and profession.

April 28th: Workshop 3 – Global Economy Guru

An introduction to global finance and how it effects everyday life.

May 5th: Workshop 4 – Jumpstart Your Financial Planning

Understand financial planning for the long and short term.

Each 45-minute webinar will start at 2pm EST. The webinars will include interactive activities and a short presentation from a female finance professional with expertise on each topic to answer student's questions. To register, click here.

Please share this opportunity with the students and parents in your life. Financial literacy is so important to help people through these uncertain economic times, and we hope through these online courses we can prepare teens for a brighter financial future.

Please note: No one will be turned away from attending, so if boys would like to join, they are welcome, however, girls will remain the focus of the content that we teach.
