WASHINGTON – U.S. Sen. Ron Johnson said this about how his offices in Wisconsin and in Washington will provide service to Wisconsin’s citizens in the coming days:

“We are working closely with Wisconsin’s entire federal delegation and with Governor Evers to coordinate best practices, including ‘social distancing’ guidelines and telecommuting procedures.

“In order to best serve our constituents, we have asked our staff to shift all in-person meetings to remote meetings using phones, FaceTime, Skype or other telecommunications media.

“Out of an abundance of caution, we will not participate in or encourage participation in nonessential events or social gatherings.”
