MADISON - The Wisconsin Health Care Association and Wisconsin Center for Assisted Living's (WHCA/WiCAL) national organization, the American Health Care Association and National Center for Assisted Living (AHCA/NCAL), has partnered with the Gerontological Society of America and other national long-term care trade associations to celebrate Careers in Aging Week, which kicked off Sunday.

"Long-term care providers throughout the state of Wisconsin are healthcare heroes," said WHCA/WiCAL President & CEO John Vander Meer. "There are so many amazing stories of dedication, sacrifice, and compassion by long-term care professionals who are going above and beyond to ensure the safety, health, and happiness of our residents during this unprecedented time."

Last year, WHCA/WiCAL launched CareForTheAging.org, an informational resource that aims to foster a deeper understanding of the wide range of career pathways available in the profession and inspire those who are looking for a new career opportunity to become a part of this rapidly growing and exceptionally rewarding field.

We invite you to:

- Explore our featured career-focused videos from current caregivers who have passionately shared their inspirational journey in the field to give you a glimpse into their world, and
- Peruse other resources including education and training requirements, salaries, and advancement opportunities to help you find the right fit as you prepare to embark a career in this noble field.

Please visit CareNotCOVID.com to learn more about how long-term care providers are supporting and caring for residents. Visitors to the site can also learn how to leave messages of support for residents on social media. WHCA/WiCAL will also celebrate caregivers all week through its social media outlets, including Facebook and LinkedIn.

Careers in Aging Week, an annual celebration, is also a time dedicated to bringing greater awareness and visibility to the wide-ranging and rewarding career opportunities in long-term care for the next generation.
