[Madison, WI] – The Republican Party of Wisconsin will host its annual state convention tomorrow in Green Bay, Wisconsin on Saturday, marking the party's commitment to 'Leading the Way to Victory' in November.

Leaders from the "Women for Trump" will speak at convention on behalf of President Trump's campaign. Additional speakers include Rep. Jim Sensenbrenner, Rep. Glenn Grothman, Rep. Mike Gallagher, Rep. Bryan Steil and newly elected Rep. Tom Tiffany. Yuri Maltsev, a professor of economics at Carthage College, will speak at convention and address the dangers that socialism poses to the United States. The convention will also include two panels addressing Republican priorities in the Wisconsin State Legislature and conservative policy in Wisconsin.

"Wisconsinites will see a clear choice following the Republican Party of Wisconsin's convention in Green Bay," said Andrew Hitt, Chairman of the Republican Party of Wisconsin. "As Wisconsinites, we will have a choice between President Trump who believes in freedom, economic opportunity, and the rule of law or Joe Biden who believes that the government is the solution to all our problems and is looking for every opportunity to ensure that government bureaucrats."

The convention will be live-streamed on Wisconsin Eye.
