The Department of Health Services (DHS) has released new data features on the COVID-19 vaccine data page. The first includes additional information on the Vaccine Distribution Summary table, which now breaks down how many doses providers in Wisconsin have ordered and how many doses are in-transit to vaccine locations. The second feature includes four new visualizations that show total vaccinations and percent coverage by age and sex.

“Providing Wisconsinites with the most relevant data to understand the process of vaccinating the state against COVID-19 is an iterative process,” said DHS Secretary-designee Andrea Palm. “We will continue striving to make our COVID-19 vaccine data page a helpful source of information for anyone looking for an up-to-date look at the state’s vaccination program.”
