MUSKEGO — Judge Shelley Grogan announces nearly $75,000 raised in her first month on the campaign trail. 65% of her donations came from individuals who gave $100 or less.

“I’m proud to have generous supporters from all 12 counties represented in the second Court of Appeals District. Our grassroots campaign is being fueled by small-dollar donors from every corner of the district who are ready to replace a liberal Governor Tony Evers appointee with a constitutional conservative,” said Grogan.

Background on the race:

Judge Shelley Grogan currently serves as the permanent Judicial Assistant to Wisconsin Supreme Court Justice Rebecca Bradley. Prior to working for Justice Bradley, she clerked for multiple Appellate Court Judges. She has more than 25 years of experience in Wisconsin courts. In addition to her work with Justice Rebecca Bradley, she is the current sitting judge in the City of Muskego, where she has lived for over 25 years. It’s where her late husband and raised their three wonderful children. Judge Grogan is also an Adjunct Professor of Law at Marquette University Law School.

Judge Grogan’s opponent was handpicked by Liberal Governor Tony Evers. Evers has now appointed ¼ of all Wisconsin Court of Appeals Judges.
