Madison, Wis. — The Institute for Reforming Government today launched its rebranded website with updated features, including a page to “tell your story,” a first-of-its-kind budget dashboard, and pages for its five main policy issue areas.

“By launching our rebranded website, we are continuing to take IRG to the next level,” said CJ Szafir. “We want our website to be a place where people can tell us their stories about how to make government work for them, and where they can learn more about the reforms we are working on, and even experiment with creating a better budget for Wisconsin.”
