MILWAUKEE – Milwaukee County’s Independent Redistricting Committee is encouraging the public to attend a public hearing on Wednesday, September 15, and provide input on the new Supervisory District map of Milwaukee County.

“Public input is essential to the democratic process of redrawing Milwaukee County’s political districts, and we want to stress to the community that they are welcome at our meetings. We want to hear from the public. We need your feedback and ideas. Help us ensure that Milwaukee County’s political districts are drawn to fairly represent every community,” said Committee Chairwoman Jean DiMotto.

The Southeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission will present the most current version of a new supervisory district map at the public hearing.

The agenda for Wednesday’s meeting includes links to current versions of the supervisory district map. An interactive version of the potential supervisor district map is also online. Previous versions of the map are available at milwaukeecounty.legistar.com.

Anyone who wishes to appear before the Independent Redistricting Committee and provide their input on the proposed political districts is welcome to sign up on the County Clerk’s web site. Wednesday’s IRC public hearing begins at 7 p.m. and will be held virtually.

Community organizations are encouraged to let their networks know about the opportunity to participate in the redistricting process and to invite their members to attend and speak.

The Board of Supervisors established the Independent Redistricting Committee, comprised of retired judges, “to maintain the integrity of the redistricting process and to mitigate any conflicts of interest or claims of politicization,” and charged the committee with full responsibility for drafting new Supervisory districts based on the 2020 U.S. Census.

Wednesday’s public hearing will be livestreamed and archived via the County Legislative Information Center.
