Washington, D.C. – Today, U.S. Senator Tammy Baldwin, a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, announced more than $176 million in approved Congressionally directed spending projects on behalf of public and nonprofit entities across Wisconsin for fiscal year 2022.

“I worked to include this funding because it delivers support from Washington to Wisconsin,” said Senator Baldwin. “This federal funding will support a wide variety of improvements in our state. I’m proud to have worked in a bipartisan way to fund these projects and deliver results for communities across Wisconsin.”

Baldwin’s office began soliciting input from communities in every part of Wisconsin since April and through the summer, working to submit requests to the Senate Appropriations Committee for projects that benefit communities across the state. The Senate Appropriations Committee reviews all requests from Senators. Only those requests that comply with Committee and Senate rules and are deemed appropriate for federal support were considered for funding. Implementation of Senator Baldwin’s Congressionally-directed spending requests will be contingent upon passage of the fiscal year 2022 appropriations bill drafts, which have been released by the Senate Appropriations Committee.
