WASHINGTON, DC – Congressman Bryan Steil (WI-01) joined Republican Leader Kevin McCarthy, Katie Phoeling Seymou, President and CEO of First Supply from Madison, Wisconsin, and Republican Members of Congress for a roundtable discussion on the harmful effects of Speaker Pelosi and President Biden’s “Made in America Tax.” During the roundtable, Members discussed the impact increasing taxes would have on our workers and manufacturers.

“At a time when we are seeing employers unable to hire workers, wages unable to keep up with inflation, and manufacturers moving their production lines overseas, the last thing we need is a “Made in America Tax.” We must be focused on getting workers back to work, and encouraging production in America. Thank you to Leader McCarthy for hosting this roundtable and to Katie Seymour from First Supply in Wisconsin for sharing first hand, valuable insight into the harmful effects increasing taxes would have on Wisconsin manufacturers.”
