WASHINGTON – U.S. Senator Ron Johnson (R-Wis.) released the following statement on his vote to pass the National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA).

“I voted for the bipartisan National Defense Authorization Act (NDAA) primarily to support the finest among us, the men and women of our armed services. At a time when we are facing increasing threats from our adversaries abroad, members of our military should be fully funded to defend this nation. One especially important provision was needed because the Biden administration is causing mass firings around the country due to the pointless vaccine mandates. This provision protects our service members who choose not to get vaccinated from being dishonorably discharged.”
