PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, WI – Today, the Wall Street Journal reported that the Biden Administration is seeking to compensate families who crossed the US-Mexico border illegally with roughly $450,000 per person. This comes as American families are faced with record inflation, product scarcity, and slow economic growth that is hindering small businesses.

Derrick Van Orden responded to this report and Joe Biden's continued failing for American Families:

"The Biden Administration continues to display that they are absolutely incompetent. To compensate those who acted illegally with hundreds of thousands of dollars while American families can't buy gas and groceries on the same day is unconscionable. All this while Biden has created his own crisis at the border that he refuses to act on. It's a disgrace and a slap in the face to every American who has been impacted by his and his Administration's incompetence"
