The Democratic candidates for U.S. Senate in 2022 will participate in a virtual question-and-answer session with WisPolitics.com on Tuesday, June 29 from noon to 1 p.m. CT.

The candidates include five declared candidates and one likely candidate who has formed an exploratory committee and was included in a state Democratic Party gathering in early June.

The declared candidates are:

- Gillian Battino, a doctor from Wausau. <https://battinoforsenate.us/>
- Sarah Godlewski, the state Treasurer. <https://sarahforwisconsin.com/>
- Chris Larson, a state senator from Milwaukee. <https://voteforlarson.org/>
- Alex Lasry, on leave as a Milwaukee Bucks executive and an organizer of the Democratic National Convention in 2020. <https://alexlasry.com/>

-And Tom Nelson, a former state lawmaker and the Outagamie County executive. <https://nelsonforwi.com/>

The likely candidate is Steven Olikara. He is the founder of the Millennial Action Project. <https://www.stevenolikara.com/>

The forum is not a formal debate, but a question-and-answer session for the political community to get to know the Democratic candidates for U.S. Senate. Questions will come from moderator Jeff Mayers and then from the audience through written questions submitted in advance.

This event is free and open to all registrants.
