Hi. This is State Senator Dan Feyen.

With the election completed and winners in most of the races across the state decided, it's time to look forward to the next few years. It is incredibly important for your legislators serving you in Madison to hear comments, concerns, and questions, from you, our constituents, so that we can be the most effective representative for the people of our districts. As the State Senator for the 18th Senate District, I take into account each piece of input I receive before making a decision on a bill.

The new lines and election results make for a lot of new faces in the Capitol, so I would encourage you to look up which district you are in by visiting maps.legis.wisconsin.gov. That is www.maps.legis.wisconsin.gov. As the election results are officially certified in the coming weeks, this page will be updated with the new legislators and their contact information so you can reach out directly to the legislators who represent you in Madison.
