

Baldwin signals federal gun legislation likely to move forward as nation reels from mass shootings

Posted on Wednesday, Jun 8, 2022

Today's Midday podcast covers U.S. Sen. Tammy Baldwin's thoughts on the potential for the Senate to move ahead on background checks and red flag laws in the wake of recent mass shootings. State officials have also offered proposals to stop gun violence ranging from banning ghost guns to arming teachers.