MADISON — Today, Mandela Barnes released his new policy agenda to cut taxes for the middle class and lower costs for working families.

As the only candidate who can authentically connect with the challenges working families are facing, Mandela is laser-focused on helping middle class workers and families keep more of what they earn.

In the U.S. Senate, Mandela will:

- Give the middle class a tax cut
- Ensure the wealthiest among us pay their fair share
- Lower the cost of health care, child care, education, and prescription drugs
- Hold oil and drug companies accountable for price gouging

“My story is a Wisconsin story. I know the struggles of working people in every corner of the state because I share those struggles, too,” said Lt. Governor Mandela Barnes, candidate for U.S. Senate. “The truth is, we have a lot of out-of-touch millionaires in Washington who don’t feel the same urgency of the challenges of the people they’re elected to represent. But when you have skin in the game like I do, you don't stop fighting. In the Senate, I'll fight to give our middle class a tax cut and ensure that the wealthy corporations and special interest groups finally start to pay their fair share."
