In response to Wisconsin Senator Ron Johnson promising Republicans would reprise their plan to repeal the Affordable Care Act if they win majorities in Congress, DNC Chair Jaime Harrison released the following statement:

“Over the last few weeks, we’ve been reminded what a Republican majority would look like – raising taxes on over half of Americans, making health care coverage more expensive, and ripping protections away from millions of Americans with preexisting conditions. While Republicans double down on their harmful agenda and still don’t have any plan to lower costs for American families, President Biden and Democrats are working tirelessly to lower health care costs, cap prescription drug prices, and protect those with preexisting conditions from losing their coverage. The choice this November could not be more clear.”
