MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Governor Tony Evers, State Representative and candidate for Lieutenant Governor Sara Rodriguez, Attorney General Josh Kaul, and Democratic candidates up and down the ballot kicked off the first day of the “Doing the Right Thing” tour yesterday with stops in Madison, Stevens Point, Appleton, and Milwaukee.

Gov. Evers also launched his Doing the Right Agenda, with his plans to keep doing the right thing for Wisconsinites, from protecting reproductive rights and our democracy to funding our schools and supporting small businesses.

Gov. Evers and State Rep. Rodriguez started the day over breakfast at Monty’s Blue Plate Diner in Madison.

In Stevens Point, Gov. Evers, State Rep. Rodriguez, and A.G. Kaul were joined by State Sen. Brad Pfaff, the winner of Tuesday’s 3rd CD Democratic primary, and State Rep. Katrina Shankland.

The “Doing the Right Thing” Tour continued in Appleton, where Gov. Evers highlighted his record of doing the right thing for Wisconsin, including cutting income taxes for the middle class by 15 percent, fixing our roads and bridges, expanding high-speed internet access, increasing funding for our schools, and supporting small businesses and family farms.

And in Milwaukee, the first day of the tour came to a close with Wisconsin Democrats gathering for a Unity Rally at the Deer District with Gov. Evers, State Rep. Rodriguez, U.S. Senator Tammy Baldwin, Lieutenant Governor and candidate for U.S. Senate Mandela Barnes, A.G. Kaul, and Congresswoman Gwen Moore.

Gov. Evers' "Doing the Right Thing" tour will continue today and Friday with stops all across Wisconsin.

- ““He can wear a blue shirt so that he can have a blue collar. But at the end of the day, I’m not quite sure that someone of his status, with houses all across the country, can say ‘I’m just one of you,’ Evers said at a campaign event Wednesday morning in Madison — the first of 10 across the state over the coming days. The remark was in reference to the fact that Michels owns a home in Connecticut, where he lives part of the year.”
