Washington, D.C. – Mandela Barnes is the Democrat candidate for Wisconsin's U.S. Senate seat and is far too liberal and out of touch with Wisconsinites for it. To prove it, we will show you just how the Badger State would look under the Barnes Brigade.

Under the Barnes Brigade, the Badger State will be influenced by radicals. Throughout his campaign, self-proclaimed socialist politicians have endorsed him, and liberal groups continue to host fundraisers for him.

- Socialist buddies: Elizabeth Warren, AOC, Ilhan Omar, Ruben Gallego.
- Democracy Partners hosted a fundraiser.
- Lauren Windsor, a liberal activist who does her own "gotcha" videos targeting Republicans, also was a fundraiser host.
- Barnes headlined an event for Center for Popular Democracy, which also endorsed him.

If he made it to the U.S. Senate, Barnes would only become more influenced by radical D.C. Democrats.

Statement from NRSC Spokeswoman Lizzie Litzow: "Up to this point, Mandela Barnes has been influenced by radicals and we don't see that ending anytime soon. Wisconsinites need someone who will fight for their values and needs, not the needs and agenda of the radicals in Washington. The Badger State doesn't look promising under the Barnes Brigade."
