

Restoration PAC targets Evers over privileged wristbands

Posted on Tuesday, Oct 25, 2022

Restoration PAC has reported $900,000 on a new TV buy.

The narrator in the group's ad says Gov. Tony Evers once headed an agency that suggested white people wear privileged wristbands.

A spokesperson said the ad will run statewide.

"When he had a chance to stop the poison of judging young students by their skin color, he vetoed the legislation," the narrator says. "Let's judge Tony Evers by his actions. Vote for a new governor. November 8th."
