Madison – Transportation Development Association Executive Director Debby Jackson released the following statement on the proposed federal gas tax holiday:

“Legislation introduced in Congress to suspend the federal gas tax is short-sighted and unlikely to provide relief for Wisconsin families. However, it will undercut the largest revenue source for public transit and federal highway improvements and put more money on the nation’s credit card.

“To save Wisconsin residents and businesses time and money, we should focus on putting the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act dollars to work addressing the state’s well-documented backlog of transportation system repairs and maintenance.”
