[Madison, WI] – While Democrats rendered the voices of their voters pointless during yesterday’s primary election, Republicans voters across Wisconsin eagerly cast their ballots for conservative candidates for statewide constitutional offices. Their choices resulted in a strong bench of leaders that will bring together a broad coalition of Wisconsinites ahead of November.

The WisGOP looks forward to working alongside the following primary winners:

- Ron Johnson for U.S. Senate
- Tim Michels for Governor
- Roger Roth for Lieutenant Governor
- Eric Toney for Attorney General
- John Leiber for State Treasurer
- Amy Loudonbeck for Secretary of State

Candidates who participated in our State Convention endorsement process also signed a unity pledge promising that they will support the candidates who emerge successful from the primary.

“Republicans are in a strong position to re-elect Ron Johnson, send Tim Michels to the Governor’s Office, and win at all levels of the ballot,” said Republican Party of Wisconsin Chairman Paul Farrow. “This November election is a referendum on the failed Biden-Evers agenda that has led to sky-high inflation, rising crime, and a crippled education system. Democrats have failed Wisconsin, and voters will reject them at the ballot box this November.”

Wisconsin Victory, the joint field operation between the RNC and the WisGOP, has already made over 1 million voter contacts across the Badger State, and the WisGOP and Ron Johnson campaign continue to open offices to bring our message to communities across Wisconsin. Republicans are full steam ahead of November and look forward to working alongside our grassroots leaders to deliver sweeping victories this fall.
