MADISON, Wis. – Opportunity Wisconsin Program Director Meghan Roh released the following statement in response to reports that the House of Representatives will advance an impeachment inquiry resolution as early as today:

“While Wisconsin families are looking for solutions that will protect access to health care, strengthen programs like Medicare and Social Security, and address high costs, Republicans in Congress remain unwilling to make these a priority. Instead, they’ve embraced divisive policies and harmful cuts to programs Wisconsinites depend on. With government funding packages stalled and only two days until the House is in recess for the rest of the year, it’s time for Republicans in Congress like Reps. Bryan Steil and Derrick Van Orden to focus on the issues that matter and start fighting for their constituents.”
