This Congress, a record-breaking 94 Democratic women are serving in the House of Representatives, all of whom are members of the Democratic Women's Caucus—including 16 Democratic women newly elected in the 118th Congress. The Democratic Women's Caucus in the 118th Congress will also be the most racially and ethnically diverse in history. In response, Congresswoman Moore released the following statement:

"Throughout my career, I have always uplifted women's needs and am honored to continue this vital work as Communications Task Force Co-Chair on the Democratic Women's Caucus," said Congresswoman Moore.
