Madison, WI — Democrat gubernatorial candidates convened in West Bend Tuesday to discuss a range of big government, high-cost policy ideas far too radical for Wisconsin. While the Democratic field offers a continuation of the chaos of the Evers/Rodriguez administration, Americans for Prosperity-Wisconsin (AFP-WI) continues to support Tom Tiffany for governor, who offers a strong track record of delivering stable, cost-saving policies at a time when the Badger State desperately needs them.

AFP-Wisconsin State Director Megan Novak released the following statement:

“Not one candidate at this forum offered an idea I’d consider a reasonable solution. The one commonality is that they would double down on the failed policies currently holding our state back: a failing education system, high energy costs, and regulations that would decimate small businesses.”

“With affordability top-of-mind for Wisconsinites, we have a choice this upcoming election; higher costs and more government overreach under Democrats, or a new era of fiscal responsibility and prosperity with Congressman Tom Tiffany.”
