STANLEY, WI – Today marks five months from Wisconsin's August 11 primary elections, and Trump Conservative congressional candidate Jessi Ebben posted to social media calling on her opponents to join her in candidate forums and debates, stressing the importance of giving voters the opportunity to compare each candidate's platform and assess each of their qualifications to be their representative in Congress.

"The 7th Congressional District is extremely vast, covering 26 counties and is the largest congressional district east of the Mississippi River. This makes it all the more important for us as the candidates to get to as many communities and people as possible. So today, I call upon my fellow Republicans, running in this primary alongside me, to join me in forums and debates, to commit to these forums and debates throughout the district in communities like Wausau, Marshfield, Hudson, Superior, Rice Lake, Hayward, Spooner, Medford, Ladysmith, and more. I hope they join me there so voters can ask us the tough questions. They can hear our responses side by side as we debate the policy issues that matter most to them."

Since announcing her bid in September, Ebben has stood out from the other candidates with the highest in-state fundraising haul of the first quarter, strong support from Wisconsin business leaders, and endorsements from national conservative leaders and organizations, including Club For Growth PAC. She is also endorsed by six county sheriffs, demonstrating the strongest backing from law enforcement among the field of candidates.
