MADISON, Wis. – Judge Chris Taylor’s campaign for the Wisconsin Supreme Court released two new ads which will begin airing today on TV and digital channels across the state.

The new ads — “On the Ballot” and “Cruelty” — show what’s at stake for Wisconsin voters in the April 7 Supreme Court election.

“On the Ballot” contrasts Maria Lazar’s anti-abortion positions with Judge Taylor’s record defending reproductive rights. “Cruelty” features a Wisconsin nurse describing the real-world impact of putting Maria Lazar on the court, highlighting her alignment with extreme anti-abortion groups that oppose providing emergency contraception to survivors of sexual assault.

Transcript:

[Narrator] This April, abortion is on the ballot for the Supreme Court.

So where do the candidates stand?

Maria Lazar called overturning Roe. Wade “it was actually very wise [Lazar]” and “a good move forward [Lazar].”

Lazar’s been supported by the group behind Roe’s reversal and radical organizations pushing for a near total abortion ban.

Judge Chris Taylor worked for Planned Parenthood protecting abortion access in Wisconsin, where she fought for survivors of sexual assault to receive emergency contraception.

Transcript:

[Christie] When someone who’s been raped comes into the ER, they need our help.

If Judge Maria Lazar had her way, that help would never come.

Maria Lazar boasts about her support from radical anti-abortion extremists who oppose giving emergency contraception to survivors of sexual assault.

Now, Maria Lazar wants us to put her on the Supreme Court where she could outlaw abortion in Wisconsin.

That's not justice. That's cruelty.
